

Internet-based Early Warning System for management of small and medium-sized enterprises

To manage an enterprise with only a few figures and to use an early warning system at the same time, this possibility is offered by the new created ERS - Early Recognition system from abenetis.

03.May 2004

abenetis developed the Internet based Early Warning System ERS, which works with only 30 business ratios. Due to the usage of temporally depending business ratios, it will early show trends of business development.

The business ratios are checked whether their values are within a certain, individually adjustable range. In case of divergences, recommendations are given how the possible coming bottlenecks could be removed. A diagram enables to keep the overview and to perceive the actual situation fast.

abenetis offers the ERS as a monthly or annual subscription. The subscriptions include the following features:

- the access to the on-line analysis "Strategic Balance", which assists businesses to relieve strategic advantages and bottlenecks, and helps to develop or remove them,
- the use of a reference book about business management as well as
- the access to the abenetis Support and Help System, which allows subscribers to send questions concerning the use of the ERS, the Strategic Balance or about Business Management to abenetis.

More details about the ERS subscription could be found on the Internet page at <http://www.abenetis.com> under the menu item "Products/Services".

abenetis offers services, information, tools and assistance for small and mid sized businesses, especially about bottleneck-oriented business management, controlling and early warning systems.
